

la Ora Na!*

At the far end of the globe, French Polynesia offers a landscape that blends an azure sky with a perfectly turquoise ocean and irresistibly infinite beaches... A beautiful escape, a moment of sunny serenity in one of Sofitel's four hotels, nestled in exceptional sites. Completely renovated in 2006 for a budget of 80 million dollars, these hotels give travelers access to four corners of paradise, full of refined comfort.

* Hello!

In the Garden of Eden...

The Sofitel hotels were among the first that gave travelers the opportunity discover the setting of this region of the world, which benefits from a tropical climate tempered by the trade winds and the Pacific Ocean, and where the average temperature fluctuates between 26° and 27°C.

Tahiti and the surrounding islands, which have always been described by explorers, writers, and painters as nature in all its bounty, are home to an array of marvels: beaches of white sand, idyllic lagoons protected by coral reefs, rivers fringed with lush vegetation, verdant mountains...

Visitors can choose their favorite island – Tahiti, Bora Bora or Moorea – and hotel. Each hotel, completely renovated and refitted, offers unique vacations, where each day of your stay unfolds according to its own rhythm. Timeless.

In Tahiti: Sofitel Tahiti Resort

You will find this hidden paradise in Faa'a, about ten kilometers west of Papeete, surrounded by lush papaya, coconut, and banana trees and bordered by a beach. A resort town that is like a dream come to life for travelers, its proximity to the airport also makes it an ideal stopover on the way to the Islands.

From its private balcony, each room opens onto the steady green of the mountains or onto the crystalline blue of the lagoon. From the vast pool, to the private beach, to the garden infused with the fragrance of vanilla and Tiare flowers, travelers cultivate the art of lounging. And while water-skiing and outings let them discover the stunning scenery, sipping a fruit cocktail poolside while admiring the contours of the island of Moorea is still a unique experience...

On the Island of Moorea: Sofitel Moorea Beach Resort

Separated from Tahiti by a 17-kilometer wide channel, the “sister island” sitting in a vast lagoon with crystal-clear waters transports its visitors right to the heart of nature, giving divers a dream destination to explore a diverse world of coral reefs. In the northeast of the island, in a park covering 14 hectares bordered by the mythical Temae beach, another corner of paradise reopened on November 1st: the Sofitel Moorea Beach Resort. Completely renovated, this hotel blends traditional architecture, combining red wood, pandanus, Kahaia and Moorea stone with modern decor. With harmonious colors, refined and brightly colored design as well as modern furnishings, the Sofitel Moorea Beach Resort provides an authentic cultural mix. Travelers can experience the joys of water sports, explore an island sheltered by incredible coconut plantations, taste the relaxing pleasures of the all-new spa.

On the Island of Bora Bora: Sofitel Bora Bora Beach Resort...

As their plane lands, travelers discover the immense and unique lagoon that surrounds the island of Bora Bora¹. As they are taken to the hotel on a private boat, guests are dazzled by the Pearl of the Pacific, whose crystal-clear waters offer varieties of blue and green, along with the bright colors of a multitude of fish. Nestled in a bay bordered by a beach of white sand, the Sofitel Bora Bora Beach Resort was reopened in June 2006 with a completely new look. Along the lines of the Sofitel Moorea Beach Resort, this hotel has captured the essence of this heavenly destination by using a décor that combines Polynesian architecture, radiant colors and modern furnishings. Set in the gardens dotted with hibiscus and exotic flowers, on the beach, or built on piles above the lagoon, the bungalows blend into the tropical environment allowing guests to admire the Polynesian fauna and flora.
